MINISTERIAL VISIT TO THE WESTERN

DISTRICTS.

[FROM OUR SUPECIAL REPORT: IR.]

To MOLONG.

The object of the Missisterial journey cam a more particularly under notice when Orange was reach ed, as the two railway reutes to Wellington are from Oran ge to Wellington in via Molong. The dispute between the advocates of the ox route and the advocates of the other is pretty well under strend. The Engineer-in-Chief for Rellways, the Orange poople, many of the Wellington people, and some others, are in favour of the route via Ironbarks, chiefly because it is direct from Orange to Wellington on to the westernmost point it is intended to carry the railway, and the Molong people and it hose in the district sur rounding Molong are in favour of the route via that town. The dispute is perhap as a matural one, under the circumst unces surrounding it. Two trial surveys have been made, and respecting them Mr. Whitton says:—"Trial survey a have been made from Orange to Wellington via Ironbarks and via Molong, and from Wellington the survey lass been continued to Dubb . The Molong route is eight and a half miles it neger than that by Iron charks, and the works, gradients, &c., average about the warne per mile by either route. The shorter line via Ironi anks is now being permanently staft d, and the section via Molong is being worked up in the office to the same scale as the working sections, in or der that a comparative estimate two working sections, in order that a comparative estimate between the two routes can be made if required. The lengths of these surveys are as under:—
"Orange to Wellington via Ironbarks and Wellington, 931 miles.

"Orange to Dubbo via Ironbarks and Wellington, 932 miles.

"Orange to Dubbo via Ironbarks and Wellington, 932 miles.

We have now finished the Christmas and New Yev's holdsays, and I think if anything there has been rather more fun than there was last year and the year before. Boung lays was coleivated by the various accisions at a pine mangurated by the Oddfellows. There was a great gethering of Oddfellows, Sons of Temperance, Orangemen, and members of the Frotestant Alliance, who assembled at their common lodge room and formed a procession, which, and members of the Frotestant Alliance, who assembly distinct the common longs of the results of the orange of and looks very much as though it autenages by vein.

Paxton is prespecting on the big vein out in their west crosscut. Having stoped the crosscut, the manager is putting up a "rise" on the big vein cut near the start. If front of this is the vein he suppose to be the one cut in a west crosscut in Brown's claim, and known as Brown's vein. His idea is to rise first, and if he finds nothing, to sink, and to crosscut at intervals to Brown's vein. This latter must not be confounded with the vein immediately west of Paxton's foot-wall vein, also known as Brown's vein.

latter must not be confounded with the vein immediately west of Paxton's foot-wall vein, also known as Br.wn s vein.

Creighton, Hixon, and Beard's tributers have finished the require to the shaft demanded by the mining inspector, and are almost ready to make a fresh start. The manager of this claim has had to put a stop to Mr. Peterson's operation on the fip as his men have encroached so far as to condanger the safety of the plat. I believe Mr. Peterson is in Sydney.

Overations are almost completed for a fresh start in Krohmann's. The namager of Carrol-Beard's takes also direction here, and has fixed an additional drum to the shaft of his engine, and trained ropes from it so as to work Krohmann's nine. In Carrol-Beard's the north drive at bottom is still being pushed ahead, but without result as far as gold incling is concerned.

The Rose of Emriand tributers have finally decided on their plan of operations. Their original intention was to go into the shaft sunk by Mr. Harvey, to cut the flat veins at the time when Mr. Gellard got the rich stuff on the adjoining boundary, but they find it has all come together and have decided on starting a tunnel to the same point from the surface. This work they have commenced.

At the hatteries, the Enterprise has completed the Dragon crushing of 49 tons, obtaining a yield of over 24 ounces per ton.—January 2.

PARKES.

[TROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Our Christmas has been unusually unfet in regard to both business and pleasure. On Boxing Day, by force of habit, the stores were closed, but so dull and monotonous was the occasion, that one small private please seemed to be the only instance of amusement. However, many a poor family recived a welcome and unexpected Christmas-box in the downpour of rain which feil on Tuesday evening. The rain poured heavily for about an hour during a thunderstorm about six inches of water were added to the bushman's dam, and the various tanks and dams were also replenished, much to the gratification of a great number of people who were suffering severely from want of water. There have been several cases of actions hardship arising from want of water, one of which would certainly have resulted in loss of life, had it not been for the prompt experience of our superintendent of police in affording assistance, unon hearing that a Mis. Phasey, who had left Gamning-bland for Parkes, was lying on the road famishing for water.

The late rain coming so heavily has not penetrated of providing a sufficient revenue, and we | will, therefore, reserve this part of the case until then. For the present we propose to deal with the expenditure only, and to do that effectually we have found it necessary to adopt some other year for the sake of comparison, and to estimate both on the basis of relative population, the only method for obtaining reliable results. The year 1867 has been selected for comparison with 1877 simply for the sake of contrasting the beginning and end of a decade, and not because there is anything exceptional in that year. In each case the population is the estimated mean for the year. aken at 440,000 for 1867, and at 650,000 for 1877, an estimate which probably approaches EXPENDITURE PROB CONSSEIDATED RETENET FOR 1867 AND 1877.

the population has increased by one-half, or fifty per cent., in the last decade, the cost of government, instead of being reduced in any corresponding proportion, has been increased by more than one-fourth ratably to the number of inhabitants. If the British Government and the same functions to perform as those relegated to our Government, and if the cost per head of the people were the same. would require an annual revenue of £212,000,000, instead of seventy-seven and a-half millions, which was the revenue for the year ending last September. Just as in agriculture and manufactures production on a large scale is usually cheaper than production on a small scale, so in political and social life the cost of governing a large population is relatively less than the cost of governing a For the last few years the experience of New South Wales has reversed this order; from which the legitimate inference is either that we are better governed, or more extravagantly governed than ever we were before. Which is it? In certain directions In certain directions both may be true. The increasing wealth of the colony has enabled Parliament to do many which the earlier settlers either to forego, or secure at their own the use of Ministerial patronage has encumbered the Civil service by creating places for the nominees of political sup-porters beyond the real requirements of the public service. With the increase of settlement there has also been an increasing demand for local works of all kinds, and these are constructed almost entirely at the expense of the general revenue, and scarcely at all out of local funds. These three reasons are the explanation of the fact that it costs one-fourth more per head of the people to govern the colony now than it did ten years ago.

An examination of the items of expenditure given above will show that there has been a relative decrease on three of them. The postal service costs nearly a shilling per head of the population less than it did in 1867; and at the same time the service is far more extensive, expeditious, and efficient Nor must we leave out the very important consideration that the charges have been greatly reduced. There is scarcely a home in the colony beyond the reach of the postman; and it is almost incredible what distance some of the inland letter-carriers have to ride, and to what all but inaccessible places they find their way. We have still a loss on account of the Post Office; but the benefits of cheap communication is some compensation for this loss, and, as the country becomes occupied, it will be found here, as in England, that a universal penny postage may become even a source of revenue. The second item showing a decrease is that of law and crime, on account of which we are to spend for the present year nearly one-fourth less per head of the inhabitants than ten years ago. This result also is very satisfactory. The fewer policemen and prisons society requires for the maintenance likely happen that these considerations will construct the most economical to work. It may very likely happen that these considerations will construct the most economical to work. resources, and the more assured is the public tranquillity. Taking into account the great extent of territory, and the great of territory, and scattered population of New Wales, and also the varied functions which the police have to perform, we may fairly claim for this colony a high place among well-conducted and law-abiding communities. The third item of decrease our military expenditure, which is relatively less by one-third than in 1867. perhaps due to the withdrawal of the Imperial troops previously quartered here, and the substitution of a nominally more economical Volunteer force. But the revenue returns do not give a full statement of the case so far as sound opinion. Still it is to be supposed that both of them have for some time past had the matter anxiously under their sideration, that they have had all the facts put before them by representatives of the rival interests, and also the reports of the surveyors, with the general re-commendation of the Engineer-in-Chief. We presume that they have gone up in a position to see with the seein under such circumstances a personal visit has undoubtedly its advantages. Every one who has been called upon to form an opinion on a matter into which local considerations enter, knows well how much more satisfactory it is to pronounce an opinion after a personal visit than without it. No amount of reading or listening can take the place of direct observation, and arguments for and against are much better appreciated by some one who has had the advantage of a personal acquaintance with the district.

in Ministers taking a reasonable opportunity of obtaining a personal acquaintance with rival routes, we see equal reason for furnishing the Assembly and the country with all the information on the subject which it is possible to furnish. Hon, members generally will not have the advantages which Ministers have enjoyed, still less will the public at large, who will have to sit in judgment on the Parlia-mentary decision. We hold it to be of primary importance before any railway extension is sanctioned, that the fullest information as to the routes, and as to the reasons why the particular route recommended is preferred, should be placed before Parliament, and also submitted to the country; and we press this consideration, because hitherto, information of this character has not always been furnished, either early enough, or fully enough. Extensions have been sanctioned with little or no inquiry, or information as to why the particular course taken has been adopted. has been able to find out what private interests have been at work to deflect the line, or to aim at deflecting it, or whether the department has been guided principally by engineering considerations, or by respecting the claims of existing population.

But while we see everything to commend

Every one can see that there may be times when the interests of settlers on the line should give way to engineering considerations while there are other times when the former should have the pre-eminence. We had this battle fought out at length in the case of the approach to Yass. case the case the decision, whether right or wrong, was based on reasons which the whole country was in a position to appreciate. But this has not always been the case, and during the present session it is to be hoped that Ministers who profess to have seen the importance of thoroughly under standing the question for themselves, will admit the equal importance of allowing hon. members and the country at large to have all possible material before them for forming a sound opinion. Something has been said about the hon.

member for the district, who is said to be shepherding the Ministers on their tour, and whose vote and interest has been said to enter as an important element into the question We altogether deny the importance of the hon. member or his vote in settling this matter. is easy enough to understand that Ministers to whom every vote is of importance cannot quite take this view of the situation So far as annual votes are concerned, we can calmly hand them over to be dealt with in accordance with passing party exigencies; but a vote for a railway is not an annual vote it is a vote for a work which will be permanent, which will affect not only the district through which it passes, but the conduct of the traffic through districts beyond. It will affect not only the present generation but future generations, and if the line does not pay, the burden of its ill-success will have be borne by the whole community. greatest benefit to the community. decision the Government comes to, we hope it will put that decision on the fair ground of the good of the public at large, and not only overtly but covertly also leave Mr. SMITH out of the calculation altogether.

THE case of small-pox at Miller's Point affords no ground for general alarm, but quite sufficient justification for the remedial and precautionary measures adopted by the Government. The pro-bability is that in this case, the disease was im-ported by the Brisbane. If it had originated from Depart, Habetashery, Ac. 3 ground at Spring Cove too near Manly Beach, the principal watering-place of the capital, to remain unfenced? It is easy to break quarantine, especially while the land is not securely enclosed, though the penalty for that is a heavy fine or six months' imprisonment. We commend the Government for their vigilance and promptitude in what they have already done, and we trust they will also give these further matters their careful and immediate attention.

THE EASTERN QUESTION. - It will be seen by our telegraphic news from Europe to the 2nd instant that sflars connected with the Eastern ques-tion have assumed a graver aspect. And this announcement is based on the refusal of the Turkish announcement is based on the refusal of the Turkish delegates to accept three of the proposals made by the Conference The proposals submitted were the division of Bulgaria into two provinces; the union of Bosania and Hetzegovina: the nomination of three Christian governors, subject to the approval of the European Powers: the appointment of a mixed International Commission, to be protected by a corps of foreign gens-d'armes, to supervise the carrying into effect of the proposed reforms: the revision of the Servian frontier; and the enlargement of Montenegro. The Turkish delegates appear not only to have objected to the proposals for an International Commission, to be protected by a corps of gens-d'armes, and the revision of the Servian frontier, but to have declined to discuss them without a reference to the Porte. These facts, taken in conjunction with the announce-ment received on the 26th ultimo, to the effect that all the Europeans Powers represented at the Confer-ence had agreed to withdraw their Ambassadors ence and agreed to withdraw their Ambassadors unless the proposals of the Conference were assented to by the Porte, are rather suggestive. But then there is another amouncement that must also be taken into consideration, and that is, that Lord Salisbury had been instructed to leave Stamboul and withdraw the British fleet in cive of the non-acceptance of the proposals by the Furkish Government. THE SMALL-POX .- No fresh cases of small-

THE SMALL-POX.—No fresh cases of small-pox have appeared, so far as we can learn. The case reported to the Government on Tuesday troved on investigation to be one of a circonic state of skin disease. The Government vesterday succeeded in purchasing a vessel to be used as a floating amail-pox hospital. The ship that has been procured is called the Faraway—a fine, clean, roomy vessel of about 500 tons. Any cases that may be reatter arise will be immediately transferred to this vessel. A skilled nurse has been engaged to be placed on board the ship as soon as the necessary arrangements are completed, which it is supposed will be within twenty-four hours. The Government have also advertised for the services of a competent medical man to take tharge of the patients on beard the ship. The whole of the immediate neighbourhood of Summerbell's wharf has been subjected to such treatment for the prevention of the apread of infection as has been deemed necessary; and all other steps have been taken which the Government have been advised to be essential for the purpose of warding off this maidt. We are informed that the Government has maided to be constituted for the purpose of warding off this maids. We are informed that the Government has to be essential for the purpose of warding off this malady. We are informed that the Government has determined, on the advice of the Attorney-General, to determined, on the advice of the Attorney-General, to prosecute the captain of the steamship Brisbane for his violation of the quarantine laws in bringing his ship, with an infectious disease on board, up the harrour of Port Jackson. This prosecution will be instituted immediately after the release of the vessel from quarantine. We understand that, in addition to the above mentioned vessel, the Government has purchased the barque Chevert, lately used for the New Guinea expedition, and that she will be at once used for the patients suffering from infectious diseases. It will also be interesting to our readers to know that, as a precaution against the introduction of small-pox from China via Cooktown, Captain Trouton has directed the local agent at Cooktown to prohibit any connection between the company's ships and those from Chinese ports, and that he should not on any account book passengers that have travelled by them.

account book passengers that have travelled by them. UNPRINCIPLED HOAX.—Attention has already been called to the fact that since the breaking-out of a case of small-pox in the city several very absurd and unwarranted rumours have been circulated. These reports, set about by idle and mischievous persons, have unnecessarily occupied the time of the police and health authorities. And it is extremely to be regretted that such things should occur, especially just now, when the public mind is susceptible of clarm. Yesterday a most unprincipled hoax was repretrated by some evil-disposed person upon a member of a well-known business firm in this city. The victim, who lives in the northern part of the city. The victim, who lives in the northern part of the city. The victim aletter, surporting to have been written by the City Health Odicer, and requesting him to attend at Dr. Dānsey's between the hours of 1 and 2, for inspection as to the state of his health. The doctor was at the Town Hall, attending to his public duties, when he was hurriedly called away to see the gentleman referred to. It need scarceity be said that an explanation presented itself at once to the minds of both gentlemen. The police were communicated with, and it is not improbable that the author of this practical joke will be discovered, in which case those who are disposed to follow him will receive a wholesome warning, which may check their mischievous propensities. UNPRINCIPLED HOAX, -Attention has already

DEATH BY DROWNING .- A boy named Wil-DEATH BY DROWNING.—A boy named William Johnson Davis, aged about twelve years, wadrowned at Manly Beach on Tuesday afternoon. It appears that he had gone to bathe on the ocean beach, and having ventured too far was drawn in by the waves. A little boy who was with him gave the alarm when he saw his companion disappear, but all efforts to save his life were unavailing. An inquest will be held at Manly Beach this morning.

BOAT ACCIDENT,-A sailing-boat, the pr BOAT ACCIDENT.—A sailing-boat, the property of Mr. Gardiner, was capsized in a squall off Fort Denison, on Sunday last. There were ten young men on board at the time, all of whom were thrown into the water. The steamer Goolwa was, luckily, passing at the time, and picked up eight of the number, and the Breadalbane the others, the only damage they sustained being a wetting. They were brought on to Sydney but returned to the scene of the accident next day and recovered their boat, which had sunk. THE GENERAL POST OFFICE.-With reference Spurious HALF-SOVERERIONS. -The recent importations of new sixpences have apparently facilitated the efforts of some evil-disposed persons to guild the new coin and pass it off for half-sovereigns. There are a number of these gilded coins about just now, and it may be as well to put the public on their standard the subject.

MANUSCRIPT MAGAZINES .- A correspondent. MANUSCRIPT MAGAZINES,—A correspondent, alluding to the number of manuscript magazines prepared by the various literary and mutual improvement societies in and around Sydney, strongly advocates that a printed magazine, containing contributions selected from the MS×, should be printed and circulated under the direction of the School of Arts. By such a publication our entrephance of friendly literary communication between the contributors and memoers, and a higher circulated under the direction of the School of Arts.
By such a publication our sorrespondent thinks an interchange of friendly literary communication between the contributors and memoers, and a higher style of composition, would be fostered.

The New Municipal Bill,—The Committee of Suburban Mayors appointed to watch the progress of the Municipal Act Amendment Bill through Parliament met again at the office of Mr. W. H. Pigotti, King-street, yesterday afternoon. The Mayor of Petersham occupied the chair, and there were also present the Mayors of Alexandria, Marrickville, Newtown, Woollahra, Ashtield, Camperdown, Bedfern, Paddington, and Darlington. The chairman stated that the time had now arrived for discussing the proposed measure at length; he had received copies of it, and understood a number of them had been forwarded to the various suburban and provincial municipal bodies by the Government, with the view of cliciting their general opinion on its features, and, if thought necessary, suggestions for its improvement. He then proposed that the clauses of the bill should be considered activative, and that being agreed to, the first three ware read and approved. A discussion took place on clause 4, relating to rating being, as proposed in the bill, fixed at a sum not to exceed its, in the pound. It was argued that, if this were agreed to, it would place too much rating power in the hands of municipal councils, while, on the other hand, some present thought the power desirable, as it would enable municipalities not only to in rease their necessary work, but to claim addition! endowment; but eventually it was agreed by six votes to three, that it would be most satisfactory to keep the maximum power of rating at one shilling in the pound. Several present pointed out that small un-THE NEW MUNICIPAL BILL .- The Committee power of rating at one shilling in the pound. Several present pointed out that small un-occupied allotments in some municipalities were rated at a shilling only, and as it was stated that this amount did not cover the cost of collecting, it was proposed that the bill should fix the minimum rate in such cases at not less than $\delta_s$, and it was also suggested that in cases where owners of property were absentees and behind in their rates, councils should have power to sue their agents for the recovery of the amount. The bill proposed to do sway with council clerks as valuers of projecty; but it was held that as those officers were experienced in such matters their services would be invaluable, and it was hoped that outforn would be allowed for training them; while in the matter of deciding appeals against excessive rates, it was agreed that it would be undesirable that the mayor or aldermen in whose district they are should have power to sit in such cases. In regard to special assessments, where a house was commenced after the general assessment, it was suggested that such should take place within six months after the election of a mayor, instead of three as proposed by the bill; and it was also suggested that cuch should take place within six months after the appellants had sent in their notices instead of twenty-ene, as the measure proposed. The ninth clause, a new one, or rather adopted from those in force in New Zealand, South Australia, and Queensland, and which would empower Corporations to lease lands when there were two years arreas of rates due on them, was unanimously approved and hopes were expressed that it would be retained. Clause 10, providing that a special rate might be levied for special work upon a petition in its favour of two-thirds of the raterpayers interested, was generally admitted to be judicious, and, having app oved it, the committee adjourned until Monday evening next, at 4 o'clock, when the remaining clauses of the bill will be considered. proposed that the bill should fix the minimum rate in such cases at not less than &s., and it was also

THE LATE REPORTED BURGLARY AT THE COMMERCIAL HOTEL.—On Christmas Pay the ratticulars of an alleged burglary at Ware's Commercial Hotel, George-street, were published. The safe, which was alleged to have been stolen on the occasion, was found in Reiby-lane, about 3 oclock on the morning of the 30th ultimo, seven days after the robbery was said to have taken place, and, singular to say, there was not a scratch upon, nor any marks which would lead to the inference that any attempt had been made to open it or tamper with it in any way. It was taken to the police station, where Mr. Wate himself unlocked it. Everything which it was reported to have contained at the tion, where Mr. Ware himself unlocked it. Everything which it was reported to have contained at the time it was taken from Ware's was found in it, with the exception of some books belonging to a business sirm lately in edies fence. As apparently no effort had been made to get the books out of the safe, it was suggested that Mr. Ware must have been mistaken in supposing them to have been in it when it was taken away; and on a further search this proved to be the case, for Mr. Ware discovered them in a chest of drawers which stood near his bedroom door. Reiby-lane is a much-used public thoroughfare, leading from Fitt-street, about fifty vards away from the back gate of the Commercial Hotel, into Macquarie-place. The sate was found in the middle of the thoroughfare at the time named above, which would lead to the inference that it had been place i there designedly with a view to its speedy. been place I there designedly with a view to its speed

SMALL-POX IN SYDNEY—PORTRICATION BY FIRE.

Sin,—Long expected—long deserved for our neglect in providing sanitary precault ma-we have in our midst the location dies see of small pox.

I do not wish to assai in creating a panic in the public mind, but it is clear from the even a of the last day or two that we are on the eve of a sourge. What we should do, thereto e, is to strengthen the hands of the Executive in active and prompt measures.

In this view, I surgest that, as Sydney abounds in hovels and beek slums, in houses not deserving of the name (vide the Heport of the Sewage and Health Bard), advantage should be taken of the present crisis to purge by fire every such hovel in which small-pox appears or is suspected to exist.

Let the Government seize such havels, destroy them and everything therein by the, comprehening the owners for a lar vaine, re-celling in due season the size of unipromises with the recultis:—First, of cranicating, by the best known process—the—a loathsome and spreading disease. SIR,—In the hope of allsying the fears, not unnaturally entertained by the public, lest the infertion of small-pox be disseminated by the medical men who have seen the patient suffering from that disease at Summerbell's Wharf, I trust an assurance from me may not be descraed inopportune, I being of necessity regarded as the vehicle most likely the convey the infection.

By me every precunition to prevent the spread of the disease has been adouted, even to the burning of svery garment wom by me white seeing the patient, and I doubt not equally effective means have been adopted by the other a solice in which she lay, my visits being simply inquiries respecting her condition, made at a distance of some fifty yards, a mode of attendance doubtless unsatisfactory to the patient, or t knowing that no practical good would in this case be likely to ensue from close inspection, I have deemed it my duty to refran from approaching more closely.

SIR.—The new Electoral Bill being now before Parliament seems to afford a nitting opp rum by to emider it edesirableness of enlargin, the representation of sperial interests, the principle of which has been adopted in giving a sent to one nember for the University.

I think it will be readily as mitted that if our educational interests need a special representative, our commercial interests need a special representative, our commercial interests equally require it, and that see ought to have a member to represent the Chamber of Commerce; for, athough this body have not distinguished themselves in any great political or public questions (which is to be regret ed.), revertheless many of our bet-informed circens are members of this body, and I b lives it would be a purific sent to have one in the connois of the country to represent the views of the Chamber on the proposed Customs laws, the new Bankruj toy Act, and on questions reading to the future mail services, &c., &c. MR. ROBERTSON ON EDUCATION.

MR. ROBERTSON ON EDUCATION.

It is well known to everybody in this colony that the Government brought in a bill last session to amend the Public Schools Act. It is equally well-known that their bill was thrown out on a point of order which they ought to have foreseen, and probably did foresee, and that they never attempted to restore it to the business paper. For the present session they have announced a bill to amend, not the Act, but the regulations. In consequence of these peculiar proceedings of the Government respecting one of the leading questions of the day more than ordinary interest attached to the announcement that the Premier was to lay the foundation stone of a new Public school at Mudges, and speak at length on the subject of education.

The prediction was fulfilled last Friday in a manner which not only deserves but compels some attention from the public. Mr. Robertson's speech from beginning to end is little more than a enlogy of things as they are. The tollowing sentence may be taken as the thesis of which the rest are an exposition:—"That, having abundant means, with all the great industries of the country in a flourishing condition, with immense and incalculable resources, we should be unmindful of one of the first duties of all Governments would be to impeach our title to civilization; but I think that few countries in the world can be with so little fairness made amenable to such a charge." He then proceeds to show "how great has been the advance in a period of ten years, and how deeply conscious the Legiskrure of the country has been of its solemn responsibility in connection with this question." Then we are told of the immense sums which have been voted for educational purposes, of the increasing number of schools, teachers, and pupils, and are finally assured that the past has been such as "we can look back to with prideand astistaction." and that the future will not disgrace it. What has come over Mr. Robertson that he should so suddenly discover the almost absolute perfection of that Ac spired against that Act with Mr. Forster in 1872, and with Mr. Stuart in 1875?

Every close observer of political discussion in this colony must have remarked one peculiar feature of it, and that is that leading public men after unsupported statements of theirs have been openly refuted, will go on repeating them as if they had never been assailed, utterly ignoring the refu ation, although they must be aware of the tarce which they are playing. No doubt they have proved, by long experience, that few people will take the trouble to ascertain whether they are right or wrong. It is easier to make assertions than to prove them, and if the general public are so indifferent as to accept assertion with as much favour as actual proof, why be at the trouble of working out the latter? But there is one drawback here. Proof tells in time, because every community has a class of independent thinkers, who weigh evidence for themselves, and eventually sway public opinion. So far as the educational position of New South Wales is concerned, it has been shown repeatedly what has and has not been done, both absolutely and in comparison with other countries. These statements, based on official returns, have not only not been refuted, but they have never hear and in comparison with other countries. These statements, based on official returns, have not only not been refuted, but they have never been even challenged. To repeat them once more would be a work of supererogation; but as Mr. Robert son has presented one side to the public, and that just the one which might be supposed most likely to check the progress of education, and has left out of view altogether that which should be for ever held before the people's eyes until the public needs have been freely met, this speech at Mudgee greatly needs to be corrected and supplemented.

The first thing supposed to reflect such great

If it is regret (for I have reasons to know) that there are some beautive-reports in the community who do not believe in some beautive-reports in the community who do not believe in some beautive-reports in the community who do not believe in some beautive-reports in the community who do not believe in some beautive-reports in the community who do not believe in some does not be success of the vall. taking credit for some ten thousand names which are simply double entries of the same children, he has also taken credit for 18,437 said by the Registrar-General to be in private schools; and for every other institution where children are to be found, not omitting the 618 at Randwick, of whose singular educational training and proficiency the public have been assumed to the Premier of the colony in throwing dust into the eyes of the people in such a recitable ses fashion? The Council of Education them selves report an enrolment of 101,399 for last year. Mr. Suttors return allowed that for the quarter ending in March of the present year the total number of names on the rolls of all the Council's schools was only 75,696, and these included ages ranging from three up to twenty three years. Taking the school-age at from four to fourteen, we believe the nearest estimate that can be formed of the actual state of things is that the Council of Education are providing elementary instruction for about 60,000, many of whom leaves before they are ten years old, and that there are 100,000 children between four and fourteen who have either never been to school at all, or have left far tos acon to be much benefited by any instruction they have received. At the last examinations held by the inspectors for England and Wales, out of a population of 23,944,459 there were actually present 2,259,411, or a ratio of 9½ per cent. of the entire population. We have no return of the total number examined by our inspectors, but it is not far below the number in average attendance for the year. On that supposition last year, out of a population of 606,652, we had only about 46,000 present at examination, a proportion of 7½ per cent. The average attendance and the number examined are the best tests of the extent of our educational work, and these show how little room there is for Mr. Robertson's boasting. Will his new regulations semedy this state of these facts, of one of his utterances to the electors of these facts, of one of his utterances to the electors of west Sydney, two years ago:—"I hold that it is the right of every child to be educated, and that his education should, if required, be paid for by the State."

The Envoys asked the Turkish delegates if their retusal was to be considered an absolute one. They promised to refer to the Porte; and give a final answer on Thursday, the 4th instant.

PROGRESS OF HAY.—The Hay Standard has the following:—In August, 1875, at the request of the commissioners appointed to represent this colony at Philadelphia Centenary Exhibition, we published a brief account of the progress of Hay during the fourteen years previous to that date, noting, among other matters, some of the principal buildings of the town. The pace at which building has proceeded during the past twelve months is, however, something surprising to any one who recollects the appearance of the municipality at the corresponding period of last year. Old houses are giving place to a new order of things; gaps are being filled in; and, when the several important additions to our street-architecture, now in progress, are completed, the general improvement in the style and character of the business premises and public buildings will be quice noticeable. A description of the buildings is then given.
